

Using Video Games to Teach Computer Science

Nate Andrysko

This past semester 15 students participated in a course that investigated the use of video games to teach computer science. The final products of the 5 groups will be presented. Also, commentary will be provided on the course, the technology used, and the usefulness of teaching with video games.