

Figure 2.2 Communication between the network device drivers and the process that implements IP uses a set of queues. When a datagram arrives, the network input process enqueues it and sends a message to the IP process.