

Figure 2.3 The flow of datagrams through higher layers of software. The IP process sends incoming segments to the TCP process, but places incoming UDP datagrams directly in separate ports where they can be accessed by application programs.