

Figure 2.6 Output process structure showing the path of data between an application program and the network hardware. Output from the device queues is started at interrupt time. IP is a central part of the design the software for input and output both share a single IP process.