

Figure 2.7 Input process structure showing the path of data between the network hardware and an application program. Input to the device queues occurs asynchronously with processing. IP is a central part of the design the software for input and output share a single IP process.